

ABSTRACT

[0111] A method for altering text displayed in a formatted page, including locating a buffer of memory locations containing contents of a formatted page, locating a text string between two markers within the buffer, replacing the text string with an alternate text string, and inserting special fill characters in unfilled memory locations between the markers. A system is also described and claimed.